

Foster a culture of innovation in healthcare

Project Title	Foster a culture of innovation in healthcare
Project Summary	Help foster a culture of innovation with your skills in research, writing, design, and social media. If you have a passion for public affairs and strategic communication, this is the perfect internship for you! You'll be helping spread methods for using Human Centered Design to change systems.
Country	United States

Project Description

The Veterans Health Administration (VHA) Innovators Network (i:Net) is comprised of 32 medical facilities across the United States. VHA employees tap into the network to learn skills that are used in the entrepreneurial and start-up communities to tackle problems and develop robust solutions utilizing Human Centered Design.

i:Net provides trainings to staff across the VHA and other government agencies to cultivate innovation competencies and provide confidence in using creativity to tackle problems in the workspace.

We are looking for someone to help with the development of communication plans and materials to publicize trainings and design events to staff. Also, someone with a passion for event planning to assist with the execution of event details. Also, the potential candidate will need a design background to work on several design projects and assist with visual meetings.
